Israel Museum

Treasures of Yemenite Silverwork

Rare silver items dated to the 18th and 19th centuries. Almost all bear the names of the craftsmen who made them, including renowned Jewish silversmiths.

Until 24 October

Venetian Splendor: Marking 500 Years of the Venice Ghetto

The world's first Jewish ghetto was established in 1516 Venice. This exhibition marks the fact with a display of ceremonial objects that reflect the cultural environment of Venetian places of worship.

Until 11 November

The House of Life

A video installation by Israeli artist Hadassa Goldvicht that largely focuses on Aldo Izzo, guardian of the Jewish cemetery in Venice and director of its burial ceremonies. In 2013 Goldvicht was invited by the Venice Center for International Jewish Studies to create a video piece about the Jewish community there, but upon meeting the fascinating character Izzo, her project evolved into something much more dramatic.

Until 26 November

And Then There Was Nano – The Smallest Bible in the World

The museum marvels at the wonders of nanotechnology. In their Shrine of the Book exhibition space you'll find the smallest Bible in the world. Created in the laboratories of Haifa's Technion Institute by a technique similar to stone engraving, the Bible has been inscribed onto a gilt nano-chip the size of a sugar grain and has to be magnified 10,000 times to be legible.

Various venues

Jerusalem Biennale

The third Jerusalem Biennale for Contemporary Jewish Art kicks off, displaying the work of almost 200 artists from Israel and further afield. Dozens of exhibitions and installations will run throughout the capital, exploring the theme 'watershed', where contemporary art meets the Jewish world of content. Read about the unveiling of Beverley Jane Stewart's Balfour mural on p8.

TEL AVIV

Beit Hatfutsot

Forever Young – Bob Dylan at 75

Tribute is paid here to hugely influential Jewish wordsmith Bob Dylan, celebrating his 2016 Nobel Prize for Literature. Featuring film clips, images, posters and, of course, Dylan's music.

Until 22 January

Capturing History: The Photography of Chim

A retrospective about the life and work of Chim (born Dawid Szymin), a pioneering photojournalist of the first half of the 20th century. He founded Magnum Photos, was friends with Henri Cartier-Bresson and documented the devastation of World War II, as well as the birth of the State of Israel.

Tel Aviv Museum of Art

Woven and Untangled

Recently acquired video installations by Israeli artists.

Among their themes are 'the perfect aesthetics of a woven tapestry in view of its insufferable details': an attempt at equal division between Jews and Muslims in the Cave of Patriarchs; an architectural phantasy in China; the failure of obsessive love; and complex father-daughter relationships. The exhibition shifts between documentary and fiction, historical/political and personal experience.

Until 28 October

Eretz Museum

Tattoos

An exploration of the art of tattoo and the diverse contemporary artistic styles in Israel and abroad, including the ancient phenomenon of the Jerusalemite pilgrimage tattoo practised by the Razzouk family.

Until 15 October

On the Edge: Israeli Paper

A contemporary portrait of Israeli design on paper, featuring works that challenge the material and form a building block of artwork as opposed to a simple surface. Artists include product, graphic and textile designers.

Until 31 October

In Response to an Italian Captain

Photographs, documents, films and personal items that detail the three years after World War II during which millions of refugees – some 250,000 of them Jewish Holocaust survivors – made the perilous journey to Palestine via Italy's ports; crossing the Alps, traversing Italy and sailing for Palestine despite the British authority's restrictions.

ART CUBE THE SWEET WATER CANAL

Until 13 October

A show about several paintings taken by an Israeli soldier from an Egyptian home during the Yom Kippur War. Decades later the soldier, who became an art professor, showed one of his students, Hili Greenfeld, which led her search for artistic associations between Israel and Egypt. After Israel this show will be moving to Brighton, UK, in 2018. We'll bring you all the details nearer the time.
